

October 31, 2018
For Immediate Release

Fisher Energy Partners, LLC has completed the acquisition of FisherPump, a Houston-based manufacturer of specialized pump systems, including the FISHERPUMP™ multistage centrifugal pump product. All of the long-term FisherPump employees have joined Fisher Energy, and will continue to provide the world-class products and service that FisherPump has been known for in the energy industry.

Dave Martin, President of Fisher Energy comments, "We are excited about the prospects for the FisherPump business and products, and are particularly pleased with the team's enthusiasm for the growth plans Fisher Energy has put in place. The Fisher team, products, and manufacturing facility are known for their high quality, compliance with the highest industry standards, and, most importantly, a superior level of customer service and responsiveness. The Fisher products can be found in challenging fluid applications from deepwater offshore production platforms to remote pipelines, handling a range of hydrocarbons and other fluids. We are excited to work with the Fisher customer base and partners to expand our product and service offerings in the market."

Steve Stark, General Manager of FisherPump states, "The entire FisherPump team is looking forward to partnering with Fisher Energy to grow market share and further develop the FisherPump installed base around the world. We are looking forward to further product extensions and additional ways to solve our customer's fluid handling challenges."

For inquiries about Fisher Energy or the FisherPump products, please contact us:

www.fisher-energy.com | +1.713.973.6838

FISHERPUMP® Multi-Stage Centrifugal Pumps
Firewater Pump Systems | Fluid Pump Systems | Fluid Process Systems